Cute and quite simple to use application, allowing you to easily control access to executables on your computer. Erase About us SoftPalace.com is a metapackage that puts together several popular freeware applications that is very useful for people who are looking for those tools that will suit their needs on Windows 10. We keep only free applications that do not include the "trialware" application and we also don't include any application that could cause harm to your PC. We are adding new apps every day so you might want to check back regularly. Nowadays, we are living in a world that is completely overwhelmed with connectivity. The problem lies in we are not able to filter the real from the fake. Even the most modern platforms are still plagued by phishing, scams, email hacking, and a host of other cybersecurity threats. For example, Google Trends put out a report earlier this year detailing top searched terms in 2018 on the internet. One of the results was 'How to hack a Facebook account.' Is it just me or does this not seem strange? Yes, Facebook is one of the biggest internet platforms that we use today. According to Internet Live Stats, its monthly active users in January 2017 amounted to 335 million people. However, only two months later, in March, Facebook data breaches were enough to cause enough worry to make the entire social network sick to its stomach. What exactly is a Facebook data breach? As the name suggests, a Facebook data breach is where an account or some personal data is compromised. This can be anything from account log-ins to photos, likes, and even more. The scope of the data that is lost can either be due to any external attack or people doing something stupid. In case of Facebook data breaches, they can be anything from inadvertent clicks to installing malware. In other cases, people do have forethought and do want to hack their friends' accounts. This can be for nefarious reasons. However, as it is more of a rare occurrence, it can take a long time to even realize that you are a victim. If you know what you are doing, you can easily detect the hack and prevent a lot of the damage that is done. And just like that, the data breach is all over the news. Whether you realize it or not, there are thousands of people hacking Facebook accounts every day. The reason that this is a huge issue is that this open data
